

Theoretical Developments in Heavy and Light Flavour energy loss

Ivan M. Vitev

^aTheoretical Division, Los Alamos National Laboratory
Los Alamos, NM, 87545, USA, ivitev@lanl.gov

Recent developments in the many-body perturbative QCD theory of radiative and collisional energy loss will be reviewed. Their relevance to the phenomenology of hard probes in heavy ion collisions will be discussed. Future directions and opportunities for jet physics at the LHC will be presented.